Taysir (Tass) Saada is a Palestinian Muslim born in the Gaza Strip and raised in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. When he grew up, he became a radical Islamist terrorist and eventually served as a sniper for the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and as a driver for the late Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

As a young man, he came to America to continue his education and befriended a man named Charlie. About 19 years after their first encounter at a restaurant, Charlie gave him a copy of the New Testament. Upon reading the Book of John, Tass gave his life to Christ and has never looked back.

Tass founded the ministries Hope for Ishmael and Seeds of Hope. In July 2023, he started the process to transition Hope for Ishmael to Hope of Peace Foundation which operates on a full-time basis in Gaza as a humanitarian aid organization. The mission of this new ministry is to promote peace and harmony among the Israelis and Palestinians, not favoring one community over another. They believe peace can be achieved someday.
